Topic: “Holocaust Survivor, #117013, shares His story!”

“There was a lot of commotion.....at Auschwitz on April 20, 1943, the first command we heard was ‘women and children to the left, men to the right,” said Werner Coppel, survivor and Holocaust Museum spokesman.

He said close to 560 people were killed that day. During a death march on Jan 18, 1945, Werner seized an opportunity to escape while marching through the woods.

During the war, he helped as many as 100 a night make it to the American Zone in South Germany.

“Werner is riveting in the detail of his plight but then uses this to explain why we should eliminate hate and prejudice,” said Rich Arnold, President, Sharonville Chamber
